Welcome Note

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to the RC28 Spring Meeting 2017 at the University of Cologne!

One of the first meetings of the predecessor of the Research Committee on Social Stratification and Mobility (RC28) took place in Cologne in December 1961 reminding us of the longstanding tradition of stratification research in Cologne. Some of this first conference contributions were published as a special issue on „Soziale Schichtung und soziale Mobilität“ (Social Stratification and Social Mobility) of the Kölner Zeitschrift für Soziologie und Sozialpsychologie in 1968, edited by David V. Glass and René König. Among these contributions was an early version of the „American Occupational Structure“ by Peter M. Blau and Otis D. Duncan.

Fifty-five years later we welcome back the RC28 to Cologne for the 2017 Spring Meeting under the conference theme “Social Inequality and Mobility Revisited – Challenges Through Recent Demographic Change”. With this overarching theme we connect social stratification and mobility to profound changes in society due to demographic behaviors of individuals and their social contexts. Family formation and fertility, migration and integration as well as ageing and longevity influence social stratification, mobility and inequality: For example, family formation and fertility shape intergenerational mobility, migration and integration speak to economic structures and social cohesion, and an aging population requires answers to questions of care and welfare state transfers. Processes that we as RC28 members aim to identify.

We are particularly looking forward to the contributions that the conference will make to these topics and to all other areas of social stratification and mobility. The rich conference program will keep us busy and offers many stimulating ideas for discussion and future research.

We hope that you enjoy the conference, and the city of Cologne.
